BETWEEN OURSELVES

THIS little booklet is not intended to take the place of the class booklet and directory published in 1916, which contains a permanent record of each member of the class since the date of graduation. It should be regarded rather as a supplement, even though its contents had to be confined substantially to within the narrow limits of a "directory." Circumstances beyond control made that necessary. The cost of printing and publishing is today about double what it was before the war and the condition of the class treasury does not warrant the duplication of the former work in extent and dress. So, it is important that you retain and preserve the booklet of 1916, as the first volume of a series of directories that may follow.

The new directory was compiled pursuant to a resolution adopted at the reunion in June, 1919. The delay in publication has been caused to a large extent—a common experience in getting out such a work—by the tardiness or failure of classmates to respond to requests for data. Where those requests were utterly ignored the information had to be gathered from other sources, or such data was used as was then available. Fortunately, the above cases were few and we are now able to state that the new directory has a fairly complete record of the addresses of our members. Only six of the class are not accounted for; their names, with the places from which they registered upon entering law school, are as follows: Leslie H. Chatterson, Detroit, Mich.; George M. Evans, Fort Gratiot, Mich.; Joseph A. Harris, Monroe, Utah; Charles A. McKnight, Grand Rapids, Mich.; Hugh E. Root, Mason, Mich.; and Richard Apperson, Mt. Sterling, Ky. Several of the above have been reported dead; but until authentic information of their demise is received, they will be classified under or as those whose "present whereabouts are unknown." The first five dropped out of sight almost immediately after graduation; every possible clue has been followed and inquiries made of relatives, postmasters, town officials, school authorities, etc., to no avail. If any member of the class has or receives information about any of the missing ones, he is earnestly requested to transmit the news at once to the class secretary.

Our first directory included also the names of men enrolled with the class who left the law school before graduation, or graduated with other classes. The present directory contains only the names of those who finished with the class and of those non-graduates of our class who in the past have shown an interest in and a desire to be a part of us. The former directory also contained a few names of men who upon investigation it has been found never were members of the '94 law class. These, too, have been eliminated. The law school graduated 279 members of our class—277 men and 2 women; 40 have died. Our organization consists of 239 graduates and 10 non-graduates; total, 249.

In conclusion, attention is called to the publication herein of the very interesting account of our great Quarter Century Reunion, held in 1919, written by Judge Burr. The policy of publishing accounts of our reunions will be followed in the make up of future directories. It is an ideal way of preserving the history of the class.

A copy of the directory will go out to every member of the class organization and every surviving member of our faculty. It is made up in convenient form so that it can readily be slipped into an inside pocket, or traveling bag, when visiting another town; our members are so widely scattered that you will be sure to find them almost wherever you may go.

HENRY W. WEBBER.

New York City, January 1, 1921

OUR REUNIONS

THE class reunions prior to 1912 were attended by but few of our members. Many of us received no notices, reminders of or information about them and our class organization did not function as in later years in preparing for these important events.

A reunion was held in 1912 under what is known as the Dix plan, adopted by the university to provide for the holding of reunions at the same time by classes graduating within a few years of one another. At that reunion were present H. D. MESSICK, CHARLES A. DENISON, CLOWRY CHAPMAN, DANIEL A. EDWARDS, HENRY E. NAEGLEY, HENRY C. WALTERS, DAVID J. MARSHALL, GEORGE GERLACH, GEORGE J. GENEBAUGH, JESSE C. MOORE, ROBERT S. PARKS, LEWIS A. STONEMAN, CLIFTON D. GORDON, ALLEN G. MILLS, FRED A. KIES, FRANZ C. KUHN, SHERMAN C. SPITZER, JULIUS C. TRAVIS, FRED. W. SMITH and JAMES H. WESTCOTT.

In 1914, however, a reunion was held, not in accordance with the Dix plan but rather in harmony with the early tradition of a reunion every five years after the year of graduation. We had been twenty years out. There were present at this reunion ROBERT S. PARKS, JOHN W. ZUBER, HOMER D. MESSICK, ALLEN G. MILLS, CHARLES A. DENISON, JAMES D. PUTNAM, MARTIN J. DILLON, HENRY E. NAEGELY, GEORGE W. FULLER, GEORGE J. GLEIM, GEORGE J. GENEBAUGH, ADELBERT MOSHER, DANIEL A. EDWARDS, ROBERT C. HENDERSON, WILLIAM J. LANDMAN, CHRISTIE A. STEARNS, FRED A. KIES, WILLIAM H. L. MCCOURTIE, BENJAMIN F. REED, HENRY C. WALTERS, HARRY H. PATTERSON, ARTHUR D. BATE, JUDSON E. RICHARDSON, MICHAEL L. McLAUGHLIN, ARTHUR BROWN, FRED W. SMITH, WILLIAM P. HARVEY, FRANZ C. KUHN, JAMES H. WESTCOTT and IRA A. CLARK.

When the time came around for holding a reunion under the Dix plan, in 1917, the class decided, by a referendum by mail, to disregard this plan and to hold a reunion in 1919, in celebration and commemoration of the 25th year after our graduation, to be known as the Quarter Centennial. At this reunion in 1919, it was unanimously voted to abandon permanently the Dix plan and to follow the earlier custom of meeting every five years after the year of graduation. It was unanimously resolved to hold the next reunion in 1924, to celebrate the 30th year of our graduation. The Quarter Centennial marked the largest attendance of any reunion, not only of our class, but of any class of the university returning after 25 years. Many were accompanied by their wives and families. The following classmates were present: JAMES M. ADAMS, ARTHUR BROWN, ARCHIBALD F. BUNTING, ALEXANDER G. BURR, RICHARD L. CAMERON, FRANK E. CHAMBERLAIN, IRA A. CLARK, FRED J. COCHRAN, CHARLES J. COLE, MICHAEL L. COLEMAN, JOHN P. CONRICK, THOMAS W. DAY, CHARLES A. DENISON, ULYSSES G. DENMAN, MARTIN J. DILLON, DANIEL A. EDWARDS, H. FRANK ESHLEMAN, RAYMOND M. FERGUSON, LUTHER FREEMAN, GEORGE W. FULLER, WILLIAM J. GALBRAITH, GEORGE J. GENEBAUGH, GEORGE GERLACH, GEORGE J. GLEIM, CLIFTON D. GORDON, EVAN B. GOSS, LOUIS H. HANNA, WALTER C. HARTMAN, RALPH W. HARTZELL, WILLIAM P. HARVEY, JOHN H. HASSINGER, LOTT R. HERRICK, JAY L. HITCHCOCK, SHERMAN H. HOVERTER, J. STANLEY HURD, FRED A. KIES, CHARLES H. KUBAT, FRANZ C. KUHN, WILLIAM J. LANDMAN, WILLIAM H. L. McCOURTIE, DAVID J. MARSHALL, WILLIAM H. MERNER, HOMER D. MESSICK, ALLEN G. MILLS. WEBSTER V. MOFFETT, JESSE C. MOORE, WILLIS K. MOORE, HENRY E. NAEGELY, HARRY H. PATTERSON, BENJAMIN F. REED, JUDSON E. RICHARDSON, BERTRAM SHANE, JAMES J. SHERIDAN, FRED W. SMITH, ELLIOTT SPALDING, JOHN G. STONE, LEWIS A. STONEMAN, JOHN C. TOBIAS, JULIUS C. TRAVIS, ARTHUR J. TUTTLE, HENRY C. WALTERS, CHARLES E. WARD, HENRY W. WEBBER, ADOLPH WEINBERG and JOHN W. ZUBER; also Professors OTTO KIRCHNER and ALEXIS C. ANGELL, Assistant to the Professors JOHN W. DWYER and Quizmasters ROBERT F. THOMPSON and FRANK M. WELLS.

Make a mental note of the year of our next reunion, 1924! Form a definite resolve now, to be on hand. Every one present at the Quarter Centennial had such a good time that he promised himself to be in Ann Arbor in June, 1924, for the next class blowout.

QUARTER CENTURY REUNION

June 23-26, 1919

IT IS always a difficult task to fix the precise date for the historical beginning of any event, and our reunion offers no exception. At commencement time in '94 it was generally understood there would be a reunion every five years, in accordance with the University custom then in vogue. Apparently, this custom was not followed by our class. The writer made it a point to be present in 1904 and again in 1909. In this latter year Judge E. B. Goss, of Minot, N. D., appeared on the scene, but we found no other member of the class—in fact, outside of writing our class records on the blackboards of the Law Department, we gave little evidence of our presence. We were strangers in a strange land. The meeting in 1914, however, was more successful. Running over the list of those present we find at least twenty-one of them returned for the Quarter Centennial in 1919.

Really the first call to the Quarter Centennial was sounded in 1916 with the publication of the class handbook, got out by Secretary Webber. The careful accuracy of this publication, the immense amount of labor involved therein, the mass of information given, the methods of arrangement and the neatness of appearance all bear testimony to his methodical qualities and his range of vision. This booklet continually suggested the necessity for a great reunion and kept alive the spirit of '94 Law.

With the class president in Chicago and the class secretary in New York, it was no mean task to arrange for such an occasion that would be worthy of the class. Not that the rivalry and jealousy of these cities would interfere with the work; but the plans and methods of the work must, of necessity, be those of one man. Webber, the Secretary, was not content to leave the reunion to any haphazard. His class directory was the beginning of a well thought out plan which really began to mature in 1918. In June of that year the first of a series of letters began. There had been class letters issued at irregular intervals since the publication of the class book, but after June, 1918, the above were combined with those in the reunion propaganda. The war was still in progress and every one knows how much this engrossed the energies of American citizens. If the war continued, the success of any reunion would be problematical; but the Hun was finished by November 11th, and in less than two weeks thereafter Webber unfolded his grand plan. The whole country was divided into districts, and the classmates resident therein were assigned to some member of the committee appointed by the officers. By January 16th, 1919, this committee was completely organized—all done through correspondence—and letters, and follow-up letters, and sleuth-on-the-trail letters began until, in sheer self-defense, the classmate had to state whether he would be at the reunion. A reunion leaflet, the Searchlight, was issued; the first number in March, 1919. President Mills' trumpet blast was heard in April; May saw all possible arguments answered, and in the same month the Ann Arbor arrangements were made. In the meantime the old class sections were resurrected for friendly and persuasive letters. Each member of the committee heard from Webber calling for reports; in fact, you had to respond promptly to save yourself from friendly abuse. Judge Kuhn, Henry Walters, Dennis Hayes, Lewis Stoneman and Arthur Brown were pressed into service as a local arrangements committee, and by June 14th, 1919, the last summons came in Number 6 of the Searchlight.

And so the great day arrived. Cole came from Maine, Chamberlain from Idaho; Kansas sent Dunham, while Hartzell came from Colorado, Freeman from Wyoming, Moore from Oklahoma, Edwards from the Capitol City, Hassinger from Virginia and Fuller from the extreme northern part of New York. This formed the circumference of effort and is convincing evidence of the value of the work done. Of course, Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois responded loyally, but these places are near. Of states having more than one classmate, North Dakota only sent a 100 per cent delegation. As near as we can ascertain there are about two hundred and fifty living graduates of the class. One-third of these arrived. Some brought their wives or other members of their families, so that all in all ninety-four registered for the reunion. We have it from the proper authority that no other class, in all the history of the University, had as large an attendance for its silver jubilee. All records were broken and the high water mark has been set which will remain for many a day.

So far as the reunion proper is concerned the festivities began on June 23rd. The Acacia Fraternity House, spacious and commodious, was secured as headquarters, and here our Clerk, Mr. L. T. Kennedy, could be found at any time to make reservations and furnish accommodations. But any stroller on the street could have found our headquarters. A beautiful silk banner, with the Yellow and Blue on one side and the Red and White on the other, together with the inviting symbols—'94 Law—hung from the entrance. This was the Mecca for the class. Registration took place in Alumni Memorial Hall. At class headquarters red and white classbadges and red and white hat bands, our class colors, were distributed. All through the next day—Tuesday—registration continued and as each arrival made his appearance he was compelled to give an autobiography and make his pledges for the week. Time had dealt gently with most of the boys. A grayer head, a stouter body, a maturer expression were all expected, and were there; but the general appearances were as of old. No one could mistake "Paderewski"; Patterson, Hartzell and Freeman were the same live wires; McCourtie was distinguishable; Edwards had the same part in his hair and the same mustache; Mills, Landman and Hanna were as debonair as ever—in fact, the “boys” were back. One of our former quizmasters, Judge Thompson, arrived, bringing his quiz-book of our junior year; he at once became the center of interest, and many a fellow found out what he would have given the world to know in his student days—his markings within the covers of that book.

The first class gathering was the luncheon at the Michigan Union. Sixty-two members of the class sat down to that feast, which was graced by the presence of former quizmasters—Judge R. F. Thompson and F. M. Wells, and later, John W. Dwyer. Every hour brought more members until the record was reached. Cars were waiting to take us for a trip “anywhere.” Some drove to Whitmore Lake; some inspected the town; others were attracted by some different magnet. The enlarged and improved Law Building was inspected; the Webster and Jeffersonian Society Rooms were examined; the library was examined; arrangements of rooms were criticised; the class pictures were compared; and each changing scene brought back some old memory. We recalled how “Jerry” tried to adjourn our class meeting by removing the class president from the rostrum; how Professor Mechem took his notes and withdrew; how “Tommy” suddenly recalled he had left his notes in his office; how the Dean tried to prevent the “parade” by bringing a Shakesperean reader from Detroit; and a few other such episodes. Some of the boys visited the cemetery in order to inspect the graves of Professors Thompson and Knowlton and to lay thereon the wreaths provided by the class. So the day was spent. Wednesday, however, was THE day. The Alumni Luncheon, complimentary by the University, was given in Barbour Gymnasium. The great room was handsomely decorated; the numerous tables were arranged so that classes were seated in order to facilitate exchange of greetings. But despite the fact that forethought was exercised there was not sufficient room assigned for our class. Space had been allotted in accordance with the general average of other classes at their reunions, but when '94 Law arrived the best laid plans went awry. We were compelled to appropriate for ourselves space at either end set apart for other classes and so well had our reputation lingered that no one thought of disputing our possession. If, by this time, any one was ignorant of the fact that we had arrived the ignorance was dispelled at the table. When '94 Law's yell was given everything else was silenced, for under the leadership of such men as Weinberg and McCourtie there could be no failure. Even the young fry just spawned watched us with admiration and envy; but we bore our honors meekly. After the luncheon we attended the Victory Alumni Mass Meeting in the splendid Hill Auditorium. The Victory Meeting was in honor of the men from the University, more than 10,000 in number, who rallied to the colors at the country's call.

Immediately after the meeting '94 Law formed in parade. Headed by a fife and drum corps, and with Professor Kirchner and Judge Kuhn of the Michigan Supreme Court in line, we marched up and down the streets. As the long file wound in and out, the spectators took notes. Sometimes in single file, sometimes in double file, we marched, all the time giving the old yell that had awakened the sleepers in the good old days. To avoid the appearance of partiality, we visited the buildings of the other departments. No one dared dispute us possession. It may be against the rule for one department to assemble in the halls of another department and attempt to load the air with the class yell; but neither Dent nor Medic nor Lit nor Engineer attempted to stop us. Even '94 Lit was compelled to express admiration of our extensive ranks, and when President Hutchins appeared in answer to our summons and announced that '94 Law was the greatest law class ever graduated from the University, the curious throng of spectators recognized the axiomatic statement. Old residents of Ann Arbor were fond of recalling some stirring incident of "ye olden days"—the time the street cars were seized, the parade in the smock for nocturnal use and such passing memories which showed the record of the past.

After the parade we held the class meeting. Steps were taken to put the class on a sound financial basis, preparatory to the next meeting. The Dix plan was again passed over and the reunion set for 1924. At the election of officers there was no contest. In order to facilitate efforts for the next meeting the country was divided into districts and four vice-presidents chosen. For President there was but one name mentioned—Henry Webber. So active had he been, so complete was his work and so pleasant and agreeable his actions that the class knew the best honor was none too good. Also he was chosen Secretary-Treasurer, and Fred W. Smith of Detroit, James J. Sheridan of Chicago, Ralph Hartzell of Denver and Frank Chamberlain of Twin Falls, Idaho, were chosen vice-presidents. One of the most interesting and thoughtful acts of the meeting took place when Webber was "fired" from the room and arrangements made for testimonials to the new President. A cane was presented to him at the dinner, and a watch a few weeks thereafter, bearing the inscription "Henry W. Webber, from his classmates, '94 Laws, U. of M., June 25th, 1919."

After the meeting we had the class picture taken. Unfortunately, several of those who attended the reunion failed to face the camera; but sixty-seven or so appeared. Another picture was taken, where the ladies were included, and thus the future is assured of a lasting memorial of the meeting.

That evening, in the Michigan Union, was held the great class dinner. Whoever planned the menu was a past master in the art. Gerlach immortalized himself with his "Champagne" (hard). Bouquets of red and white flowers were presented to the ladies; a handsome souvenir, in the form of a pocketbook, stamped with the University seal and the words, "Quarter Centennial, Law '94, U. of M." was given to each man. Judge Kuhn presided as toastmaster. Professor Mechem was unable to be with us. Professor Angell and Professor Kirchner, however, were there, and addressed the gathering. Former Quizmasters Thompson, Dwyer and Wells were presented, and more respect shown them than in former days —in fact, we found they were real human and lovable. A silent toast was drunk to the memory of those who had passed on, while the Secretary read the names. The "Who's Who" part of the programme proved to be interesting. Each man was compelled to tell of himself, and the multitudinous variety of life shown is expressive of the way of the world. These talks were alive with interest. Here was pure drama—real and gripping—the living reality of life. When seventy or eighty men, from every corner of the country, relate, not only the common experiences of life, but those unique and startling episodes that distinguish and differentiate men, interest is always maintained, and the only regret is that the end comes too soon.

With the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" the reunion, as a distinct and separate event, came to an end. As Webber had prophesied, it was "An Event of a Lifetime." Men went out from this gathering understanding their fellow men better. Men that we hardly knew in college became real to us. Old friendships were renewed and new ones formed. Trivial things had disappeared and the solid ones of life were presented, for time had melted obstacles and brought out in bold relief the permanent. Those who had the privilege of being present on this occasion will ever consider it one of the bright spots of life. Its success ought to be a compelling incentive to the absent ones to be present at the reunion in 1924. The undersigned was given the unsolicited task of writing an historical account of the Quarter Centennial, and this hasty sketch must answer for his effort. He imbibed the spirit of the others who,

*"Each took aff his sev'ral way,
Resolved to meet some ither day."*
